PASSENGERS ONLY JARRED.

When Their Train Cut a Freight Train In Two.

Westboro, Mass., June 22.—The main line of the Boston and Albank railroad was blocked several hours yesterday by a collision of the west bound ex-press leaving Boston at 9 a.m., and a press teaving Boston at 5 a. m., and a freight train a quarter of a mile below this station. The engineer of the express saw the danger in time to apply the brakes and jump, but the locomotive erashed into the freight with enough force to cut it in two as it was crossing the track at right angles, piling two tracks with wreckage. The passen-gers of the express were only jarred. The locomotive alone left the track.
